

Abstract

Electronic component and coating medium

The invention relates to an electronic component with soldering areas arranged at specific locations on at least one exterior surface, whereby the component is covered with an anti-solder coating on its surfaces excluding the areas intended for soldering. Further, the invention relates to a coating medium intended to prevent solder splash.

FIGURE 1